INNOVATIVE and ENDURING PATHWAYS

The adult swallows have all left us seeking warmer climes. Their offspring are on the way too, trusting their instinct to guide them to new fly paths in life.

Third level students from all over the world are back among us in their thousands, seeking to make the most of the precious talents and opportunities with which they have been gifted by their parents and by their God. We joyfully welcome them in the confident expectation that we will all be enriched during the year ahead, as they search for faith based love, inspired creative pathways for life. Many a person would love to see a younger person take up in life where they left off themselves, whether it is in rearing a family or in business, or in a trade or profession or in the service of the Gospel.

St. Paul was no exception. He had spent the most of his life in building up communities of love of Jesus. Now in person, he was sending young Timothy back to look after these young communities. He had great hopes that Timothy would do a good job in keeping faith alive. But just to make doubly sure, Paul wrote letters of guidance and encouragement to his protégé.

Almost two thousand year later, this same advice and encouragement is addressed to each of us. As followers of Jesus, we share the same call and the same gift of the Holy Spirit. We must not neglect these gifts in our own lives, nor fail to foster them in those who come after us.

Hear Paul's encouragement and challenge again in the second reading today.

Fr. Tom Clancy.
